

Thursday, June 18, 2009

MOVING THE MOVER: Miami-Dade Transit is looking into having its transit department operate the people mover being built to connect Miami International Airport to the Miami Intermodal Center – but there could be issues. “We do have a contract for design, build, operate and maintain,” Carlos Gimenez pointed out. A proposed study will consider that, item sponsor Barbara Jordan said, adding that it’s unfortunate the county contracted out the project “when we could have done it internally.” The Transit, Infrastructure & Roads Committee last week OK’d the proposed feasibility study.